

Shell – Edged Ceramics

This piece of ceramics is about 5cm by 4cm, and looks to be part of a plate made sometime before the 1800's. The shell -edge color is blue that was very common along with green on shell –edged ceramics. My small piece of ceramic also looks to be chipped and or eroded. It also looks to have some small cracks starting as well.

Bones

I have two bones here, the first one looks to be a vertebrae from something like a lamb, sheep, or pig. The second bone is a long bone, which would be the legs of what would also be from a lamb, sheep, or pig. The vertebrae is about 4cm by 6cm, the long bone is 14cm by 4cm, and both bones look to be starting to rot.

By: Zach Raby